Recollection Wisconsin’s primary focus in 2015 was the development of our partnership with the Digital Public Library of America. DPLA is an initiative to bring together the riches of America’s libraries, archives, and museums and make them freely available to the world. Since launching in April 2013, DPLA has aggregated over 13 million items from more than 1,900 institutions across the United States. DPLA’s nationwide network of partners includes numerous state and regional digital collaboratives as well as leading cultural and academic institutions such as the Smithsonian, the National Archives, Harvard, and the New York Public Library. As the DPLA Service Hub for Wisconsin, Recollection Wisconsin will serve as the “on-ramp” for our state’s libraries and cultural heritage organizations to participate in DPLA, ensuring that local digital collections can be discovered as part of this groundbreaking program.

DPLA Service Hub planning activities
Getting the Recollection Wisconsin Service Hub off the ground in 2015 involved convening numerous meetings of stakeholders, formalizing the consortium’s governance structure and policies, building out the technology necessary to provide digital collections to DPLA, and sharing information about the initiative with current and potential Content Partners.

Recollection Wisconsin 2015 DPLA Service Hub activities:

- Coordinated and confirmed in-kind commitments of technology, content hosting, project management and other support by Governing Partners: Marquette University, Milwaukee Public Library, University of Wisconsin-Madison, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, WiLS, the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction and the Wisconsin Historical Society
- Established Governing Board, Steering Committee and Metadata Work Group
- Applied for and received Service Hub status from DPLA
- Presented informational sessions about DPLA and the Service Hub planning process to staff of libraries and cultural heritage organizations at conferences around the state
- Established tools and procedures for ingesting, aggregating and sharing metadata from Content Partners’ digital collections
- Began development of policy documents including a Collection Policy and a Participation Agreement for new Content Partners
New content
In 2015, we worked with UW-Madison IT staff to harvest metadata representing approximately 15,000 new digital records. The new content brings the total number of resources discoverable through the recollectionwisconsin.org portal to 231,270.

New collections added to Recollection Wisconsin in 2015:

1. Beloit Public Library – City directories and other local publications
2. Brillion Public Library – Scrapbooks, church records and other documents
3. Dane County Historical Society – Madison Central High School Yearbooks 1900-1969
4. East Troy Public Library – East Troy Electric Railroad Collection
5. Kewaskum Public Library – Photographs from the Kewaskum Historical Society
7. Medical College of Wisconsin – Six digital collections featuring course catalogs, graduation programs, historical medical devices, and products developed by Marquette Electronics.
8. Milwaukee Public Library – Historic Trade Cards Collection
9. Shawano County Memory Project – Local history publications
Education and training
We offered six training opportunities related to creating and using digital collections, and shared information about our developing partnership with DPLA at five statewide and regional conferences. These events reached a total of approximately 380 staff and volunteers from schools, libraries, museums, and historical societies around the state.

Work with students
Recollection Wisconsin supervised and mentored three graduate students from the School of Library and Information Studies (SLIS) at UW-Madison, as well as one undergraduate History major. Student projects included creating enhanced descriptions for historical photographs, researching metadata standards used by other DPLA Service Hubs, and developing content for our social media channels and online exhibits.

We also partnered with a SLIS faculty member to provide a class of 30 graduate students with hands-on experience in building a digital collection. The Kewaskum Historical Society, in partnership with the Kewaskum Public Library, had previously scanned a group of photographs depicting businesses and landmarks in Kewaskum. The students assigned titles, subject terms, dates and other descriptive metadata to each photo, applying the standards and procedures they learned in class to make the photos more searchable and useful for researchers as well as local residents.

New funding sources
We secured several new sources of funding, enabling the program to continue current levels of service into 2017. These sources supplement our current in-kind contributions from Governing Partners, harvesting and hosting fees from Content Partners, and a three-year, $75,000 grant from the Nicholas Family Foundation.

- Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) funds from the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), administered by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction, will help support Wisconsin’s participation in DPLA.
- The Wisconsin Public Library Consortium, in order to encourage collaboration among regional public library systems and facilitate digital projects in public libraries, contributed funds to support content hosting and the development of a web-based training curriculum.
- The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation awarded a grant for general operating costs.

Accolades
Recollection Wisconsin was named to Family Tree Magazine’s list of Best State Websites for Genealogy in 2015. This list honors the best websites that specialize in genealogy research for one of the 50 US states.
